Stay up to date with the BuzzFeed Daily Newsletter! Even if streaming music dominates your listening time, a good playlist can be hard to find. With tens of millions of sounds, countless artists and a never-ending range of new melodies to gopp with your ears and discover who you can trust when it comes to compilations, it can be a daunting task. Even a superficial search in Wikipedia's list reveals nothing musical (and hurts our heads). For many, Spotify is the source of all things music, and it's full of curated and self-brewed playlists. It's all subjective, of course, but we think the best playlists on Spotify are the ones with a consistent theme – playlists that you can throw and enjoy even if you don't know all the songs. You could create your own playlist, but that means a significant time commitment as you are scoured through the depths of the service. Sometimes it's more fun to discover music than to choose it! In this sense, tired streamers, no further, we've gone our favorites, listened for hours and compiled a list of the best playlists on Spotify in the hope that your stressful search for new music will be simplified. We've also thrown in a few celebrity-made playlists and a few user-composed collections where you can sink your teeth. Strap on a few headphones and boost the jams – these are our choices for the best playlists on Spotify. Check out our weekly best new music column, have a nice day! You can't always be in a good mood, especially if you're working for Soundcloud. The best way to combat a bad mood is with cheerful music, and that's exactly what Spotify have a big day! Playlist is made for. With a good selection of classic artists and newcomers, even the corny cuts here - I'm looking at you, Counting Crows - will radiate positive moods on the way. New Music Friday Every Friday, the fine people on Spotify put together this playlist with new music to check it out during the week, a pop-centric mix that will help even most listeners behind the times to catch up with what's going on in the music world today. U.S. Top 40 Hits Keep track of the biggest new pop hits can be tough, so why not let Spotify do it for you? With this constantly updated Top 40 playlist, user Keron tracks the biggest singles of the day and keeps you hip to your teens and young colleagues, and without the hassle of listening to rapid pop radio personalities. Walk in Like You Own the Place Whether you have a big game, a big interview or a big date, these songs are the musical equivalent of a pump-up speech, is a rap-heavy flood of self-confidence boosters that can only increase your game. I Love My 90s R&B Who doesn't want to dance to the classic sounds of Lauryn Hill in the living room, visit the pharmacy with Boyz II Men in the background or pick up a friend while he blasts TLC? This playlist is the perfect tongue-in-cheek throwback; it is with excellent music, but it's all stuff you may have forgotten since the Spice Girls left the radio. Rock Renaissance of the 90s With many hits that made Seattle the music capital of the world for a brief moment, this list is full of grunge, alt-rock and industrial jams. Throw on some acid-washed denim and a worn red flannel and leave your groove on. Gold School Classic hip-hop masterpieces don't find their way onto the radio these days, but the Gold School puts together a number of favorites in one place. This is the one place (except Thugz Mansion, of course) where 2Pac and Biggie know each other famously. 80s Rock Hits! The guilty pleasure playlist. Yes, everyone hates hair metal, but deep down, we know you love it. You can't miss some things about the 80s - coughing, coughing, hair - but it was undoubtedly a great time for music. There is nothing like breaking your hair dryer, using it as a makeshift microphone and lip syncing to Juice Box Hero. Original Outlaw Outlaw Country can be hard to find on pop-country radio, but if you're looking for classic Southern hits, you don't need to look any further than Spotify's Original Outlaws list. With songs by legendary lawbreakers like Willie Nelson and Merle Haggard, as well as activist voices like Kris Kristofferson, these hits will effectively draw the ears straight from the Brad Paisley Blues. Throwback Thursday A playlist of older standout hits, Throwback Thursday is the list you can turn to if you're on the hunt for high and low for ah-ha moments. These nostalgic explosions from the past will dredge moments that are locked deep in their brains and settings have long since been forgotten. Happy Days As the saying goes, oldies ... but treats. This three-hour mix of good-time singles brings together upbeat hits from the 50s and 60s. With jams by classic artists such as Jackie Wilson and Sam Cooke, you're sure to smile soon. Funky Jazz, Blues& Soul Since when is Soul Music limited to slow jams? This huge playlist (it's almost 500 songs long) is simply full of soulful melodies, from instrumental jazz to heartbreaking blues tracks. The selection of music in this playlist goes back almost 100 years, and it's safe to feel somehow. Daft Punk's Favorites (Guy-Manuel de Homem-Christo) A hand-picked playlist by Daft Punk member Guy-Manuel de Homem-Christo, this collection of songs offers an interesting insight into what's ticking under the helmet. An eclectic mix of sneaky nods to massive pop stars like Drake and cult heroes like The Ramones and Ariel Pink, here's a depth to the song choices, and every selection seems carefully on the list Kendrick Lamar's The Making of 'good kid m.A.A.d. city' A hand-picked selection of Grammy-winning wordsmith Kendrick Lamar, this playlist explores the influences behind his epic debut album Good Kid M.A.A.D City. It's a curious look at Kung Fu Kenny's inspirations that go deeper than just hip-hop. Snoop Snoop Merry Jane Playlist Merry Jane is a relaxing set of songs curated by none other than the D – O – Double G itself. While the famous rapper probably uses this list in less than legal environments (in some states anyway), it's also just an excellent way to relax at the end of a long day. This Is: Sir George Martin This Is: Sir George Martin offers an interesting insight into the spirit of the recently deceased Beatles mega-producer and shows his intense talent for tonal layering and classically influenced arrangements. Think of this as a history lesson in which the textbook is brilliant music. This is: Max Martin Among the most interesting (and wealthiest) music producers in pop history, Swedish singer-songwriter Max Martin has lent his tonal palate to virtually every major pop star of the past two decades. This list includes many of Martin's hits that offer an interesting look at his own creative development over the years, as well as a mix of some of the most iconic pop songs from the mid-90s. That's: Disney You don't have to be a little kid to appreciate Disney movie music (although it definitely helps). Many of us have grown up watching the company's animated musicals – and still hold a liking for the songs. Spotify's This Is: Disney playlist has everything from classics like Pinocchio to recent hits like Moana and Finding Dory. Songs to Test Headphones With The best way to get know that new amp, receiver, or pair of headphones is to play a sortiment of well-mixed music through them — and that's where Spotify's Songs To Test Headphones With comes in. A 12-hour playlist of tunes to check your latest audio equipment is packed with superbly produced jams. Instrumental Hip-hop This listener-created playlist of classic hip-hop instruments provides exactly the kind of steady groove you need to focus on the task ahead, with no words to distract you. And with classics by J Dilla, Pete Rock and various other producers, it's also a great way to educate yourself about the sounds of famous Beatsmiths. Family Road Trip It can be difficult to know which classic jams your children should hear first. This playlist takes care of this theme for you: Hits by the Beatles, Jackson 5 and Van Morrison provide the perfect starting point for your new music listener (or twins!). Indie Workout For those who aren't in Hot 100 hits, it can be hard to find good music to take to the gym, and that's where the indie workout list comes in. These are positive songs with infectious beats – exactly the kind of thing you need to get you through the movements of the day, but without the radio gloss, the may be used to hearing through gym speakers. It's also a great way to test your Mighty Music Player. Bass Drops Bassheads, that's for you. This massive playlist, courtesy of Spotify user Kyle Easson, is absolutely dripping with dirty drops that let you jump up and down uncontrollably. It's not all dubstep and trap music — there's a fair fair of hip-hop and pop melodies as well — but it's all bass, all the time. Future Beats For those who appreciate avant-garde and experimental music, we present the Future Beats playlist. Artists such as Flying Lotus, Flume and Shlohmo have a selection of tracks that dare to color outside the lines, creating unique, vibrant soundscapes with live instrumentation and synthetic sounds. Grimy Rap Not to be confused with the British Grime rap scene. Sometimes you just want to feel like a super villain, you know? This is where the Grimy Rap playlist comes in. Dark, steering instrumentals set the stage for some of hip-hop's best poets, each armed with a monotonous drawler that will make you smuggle your way down to Crenshaw Boulevard.
